'UNCOVERING CAMISSA' - STREAMS OF HUMANITY - A PERSPECTIVE FROM CAPE TOWN

Be surprised by this video - it's about diversity, transnational identities, labelling, slavery, and a journey for the ages. The new Camissa Museum, in the original Dutch fort (built from 1666-79) known as the Castle of Good Hope, opens up a powerful and on-going story of how the submerged streams of humanity flow into each other ... and offers a widely relevant vision for the future.

At age 100, the oldest National Park Ranger in the United States, a career she began at age 80, Betty Reid Soskin serves at the Rosie the Riveter/World War II Home Front National Historical Park in Richmond, California. God and the People: Prayers for a New New Awakening

"These are prayers for action, not for armchairs. There are prayers here for families, for essential workers, for first responders, for scientists, and for healers. They are filled with hope and with vision. Above all, they abound in compassion and in love. They awaken two kinds of wonder. First, there is wonder at the goodness of the world created for us—astonished joy ... and amazement at life itself ... puzzlement over how things have gone dreadfully awry. Such questions are not addressed vaguely to others who should know and do better. The perplexing queries are addressed first to ourselves"

(Jerry Winslow, Foreword)

LCLI UPDATE

17 of our LCLI Fellows (and a few others) across several disciplines will over the next year be writing chapters for a new Handbook on Religion and Health: Diagnosis, Prognosis, commissioned by Elgar press, co-edited by Jim, Gary and TC. Aimed at 'looking forward', not simply summarizing/analyzing what we already know or do, it will focus on 'Health for All,' 'Health of the Whole', 'Health from Below', and 'Changing Language, Shifting the View'.

Other things are also bubbling, about which more later.
