LCL/Positive Deviance on YouTube ...

We have, with Arvind Singhal's Positive Deviance 'tribe', launched our own YouTube channel!

This is great news for us. 20 short YouTube videos are on their way, extracted, edited, curated and enhanced selections from our three LCL/PD Zooms. As standalones they capture more powerfully than you might expect key LCL and PD concepts, perspectives, case studies and experiences.

The first two video links to our 'Flip to Life' YouTube channel below are great introductions to the Leading Causes of Life framework and the Positive Deviance approach.

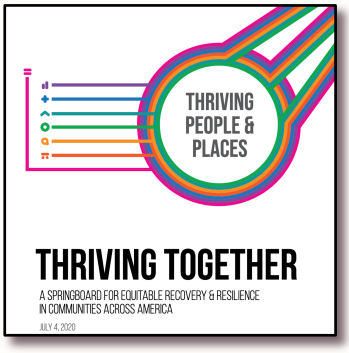
Please share them over any social media you use and in your own networks. They are good enough despite the limits of Zoom, and short enough for anyone quickly to gain insight into the often quite extraordinary exchanges we all have had with one another in this very challenging year.

Leading Causes of Life - What are they? (7min 23secs)

Understanding 'Positive Deviance' (10min 3secs)

We will regularly be releasing further videos from the series in the next while. Many of them are only a few minutes long yet beautifully focused, all expressing a 'Flip to Life'. Give us your feedback, and give us your ideas on what more we can do with this rather effective way of communicating!

"Thriving Together" - Responding to Covid-19



Several LCLI Fellows have helped produce this US doccument responding to the challenges of Covid-19, including the natural world/ environment, health & safety, housing, work, transport, learning, 'belonging & civic muscle', faith communities, and more. Those of us outside the USA may also find it probing enough, raising enough key questions, to be more than interesting. Here's its focus:

"Across America and Beyond, our quest to thrive has grown more difficult as we struggle and suffer through spiraling crises. Generations before us have endured sweeping adversity and sometimes found the strength to make great strides toward well-being and justice.

Here's a link ....

This Springboard shows how the immense resilience in America's communities can propel us to organize local and nationwide action around one unifying and measurable expectation: All people and places thriving. No exceptions."

Major Mexican honour for LCLI Fellow Eva Moya

Congratulations to Eva, who works out of the University of Texas at El Paso with US citizens but also Mexican nationals, entirely fitting to her and to where El Paso is on the border! She has just received the "2020 Ohtli Award, the highest honor bestowed by the Mexican government to individuals who have aided, empowered or positivcely affected the lives of Mexican nationals in the United States and other countries."
